ISRAELIS GET BAD NEWS — NEW TAXES AND PRIVATIONS

JERUSALEM—The cold economic facts of the Sinai campaign are being learned by Israelis as they hear the news which was not unexpected of how they would pay for the victory in new taxes and new restrictions on the use of fuel.

The tax burden may be lightened by the projected 40 million pound defense bonds which are now being sold to the public.

BUT EVEN with the success of this drive, fuel restrictions are inevitable.

Drastic restrictions in the use of electricity went into effect this week. As of Nov. 25, householders were forbidden to turn on more than one light in a room, and this no brighter than 60 watts. Restrictions just as severe have been imposed on the use of electrical appliances. Water may be boiled only twice a week and the total monthly consumption must not exceed 70 kilowatt hours.

ALL SHOW WINDOWS and advertising lighting is banned, and the Israel cities are taking on the appearance of a grey blackout at night.

Consumption of electric power in commercial premises must

MIGRATE TO ISRAEL

JERUSALEM—Seventeen immigrants from Hong Kong, most of whom were aged and invalid, arrived in Israel by plane recently.

LOS ANGELES (NJP)—Spyros Skouras, who helped to build a nation-wide movie empire, funds will be used to build a theater and other entertainment arts structures.

(Skouras has no theater at present, a fact which dismayed Skouras when he learned it at a recent Los Angeles Committee for Brandeis University dinner meeting.)

Dr. Abram Sachar, Brandeis

U. president, who heard Skouras year.

Picketing . . .

Leaders of national Jewish organizations joined in picketing the Egyptian consulate on New York's Park Ave. in protest against Egypt's repressive measures against her Jews. Shown in one group of picketers above are left to right Hyman Bravin and Philip Plotzky of the Jewish War Vets, Isidor Teitelbaum and Dr. Israel Goldstein of the American Jewish Congress and Walter Kirshenbaum of the Jewish Labor Committee.

Little Chance Seen For Anti-Shehita Bill

LONDON—A bill to ban shehita will be introduced in the British parliament this week. Persons high in the government, including the secretary of agriculture, are certain the bill will not be passed.

announce his plans, put a number of architects to work immediately drafting blueprints and prospectus because Spyros Skouras is a man who gets things done.

The movie mogul told The National Jewish POST that the "actual fund raising" will begin earnest after the first of the year.

REPLACING JEWS TROUBLES EGYPT

LONDON (NJP)—The Egyptians moved a little too fast in their action clearing Jews from high positions in business and industry, and have been forced to relent on the order forbidding Jewish stock brokers to engage in their work.

Emil Levy, president of the Cairo Stock Exchange, who was arrested when the first anti-Jewish excesses were promulgated, has been released, and the rule against stock brokers engaging in business has been revoked. Ninety per cent of the stock brokers in Egypt, according to The Jewish Chronicle here, are Jewish and the stock exchange was therefore completely stalled.

THE SWEEPING anti-Jewish measures banned Jewish lawyers, engineers, accountants, chemists and doctors from following their professions. A number of dentists, originally included in the ban, have been ruled eligible to work, presumably for the same reason that stock brokers have been permitted to resume their business.

Yellow identity cards have replaced the documents that Egyptian Jews formerly carried. The significance of the yellow color, which was used both by the Nazis and during the Middle Ages, has not been lost on the Jews.

U. S. Vetoes Oil Pipeline For Israel

TEL AVIV—A proposal by a French company to finance and build an oil pipeline through Israel from Eilat to Haifa has been thwarted by the United States State Department, it was learned unofficially here.

The pipeline, which would have been capable of carrying 20 million tons of oil a year, would have been built by a United States subsidiary of the French firm. When permission for the project was sought from the United States State Department, it was denied.

As a result, Israel is going ahead with modest plans of its own to lay a small pipeline from Eilat to Beersheba to transport oil for its own needs. From Beersheba the oil would be carried by railroad tank car to Haifa, where it would be refined.

The French proposal, which had the blessing of the French government, would have enabled the Israel pipeline to transport the oil at $1.19 a ton as against $1.26 a ton cost for passage through the Suez canal.

Since the Suez canal is rapidly proving inadequate to handle the increased flow of ships, the Israel pipeline would have served as alternate means for bringing Mideast oil to Europe.

THE JEWISH Chronicle here reported that Jewish communal authorities are hindered in their work because of lack of funds and the violent anti-Jewish campaign. All Jewish schools have been closed and taken over by the Arab educational authorities.

These measures are being accompanied by an unabated anti-Jewish and anti-Israel campaign. Special vans equipped with loudspeakers disseminate vicious anti-Israel and anti-Jewish slogans, and student groups march through the streets singing anti-Israeli and anti-Jewish songs.

Over 10% Dividend For 5th Straight Year

NEW YORK — For the fifth straight year, the Israel-Rassco Investment Co. (ISRAS) has declared a dividend of more than 10 per cent. The dividend just declared for the year ending June 30 was 11 per cent.

The company's assets consist mainly of investments in houses and citrus groves in Israel. It is registered with the SEC and shares may be purchased with Israel bonds.

They Sub For Them During Christmas

Jewish GIs Hold Down Fort While 3,000 Soldiers Celebrate

FORT DIX (WNS)—With a lift from some 3,000 Jewish soldiers, Santa Claus is on the way to some 3,000 Christian GIs who hope to spend the Christmas holiday with parents, wives, relatives and friends near warm hearths and covered tables.

Military officials at the Army camp here said the men will be able to get Christmas furloughs as a result of voluntary offers by Jewish servicemen to do all the chores when their Christian buddies are away celebrating the Christmas holiday.

PIONEER JOSEPH BARATZ, founder of Kibbutz Dagania, Knesset member, stopped off long enough in New York on his tour of the United States, to chat with old friend Eleanor Roosevelt, look in on UJA Conference, meet with Histadrut friends, and check on status of new edition of his book, "Village by the Jordan," soon to be reprinted with foreword by Mrs. Roosevelt. Left Israel after Sinai expedition was over. Visited the wounded. Deeply impressed with their spirit. Tells how recent shipment of 50 battery radios by AMLI (Americans for a Music Library In Israel) was already in use in Sinai desert and how quickly Vaad Leumann Hachavah (like our USO) began to receive gifts of bed linens, scarves, socks, plastic dishes, appliances, formica for table tops, pocket knives, sporting equipment from folks at home and abroad (could use more!). ANN ARBOR, Mich. (NJP)—The increased security of Jews in the United States may pose a greater threat to the survival of Jewish values than the extermination camps of Hitler, the incoming national director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations declared here.

Dr. Judah J. Shapiro, who takes over active guidance of the campus organization with 200 foundations all over the world, on Jan. 1, spoke at ceremonies marking the 30th anniversary of Hillel at the University of Michigan.

"... IN THIS COUNTRY," he warned, "we are alienated increasingly from our past culture and traditions. We have not accepted the American right to exist with our own cultural differences and uniqueness. On the contrary, we are paying for 'equality' in the American scene by simply becoming 'value-less' people."

The only way American Jews can fulfill the role placed on them by history—to serve as a seed-bed for conserving Jewish cultural values for all the world—is to re-awaken a sense of heritage among the young, Shapiro asserted.

THE NEW ACTIVE head of Hillel urged the re-dedication of the organization as a laboratory of a new Jewish communal life in this country. He urged that Hillel be more than "a home away from home, more than a social center."

"It must," he asserted, "take up the challenge to bring to 200,000 Jewish students the traditions that are theirs but are neglected through unawareness. It must foster a new pride in association with those traditions."

DR. WILLIAM HABER, Professor of Economics at University of Michigan, and chairman of the National Hillel Commission, presided at the meeting, attended by some 200 student leaders, faculty members, officials of the University and members of the Jewish community of Ann Arbor.

Hillel at Michigan, directed by Dr. Herman Jacobs, who took over the job two years ago, shares its quarters with the Jewish Community Center. The structure includes a dormitory, modern kitchens, library, social hall, synagogue, recreation rooms and a reading room.

Anti-Zionist Council Asks State Dept. For Expulsion Facts

NEW YORK—The Department of State has been asked to obtain and release for publication the true facts concerning the present situation of Jews in Egypt.

In a letter to the Secretary of State today, Clarence L. Coleman Jr., president of the American Council for Judaism, pointed out that political Zionism had frequently appeared to transform the religion of Judaism into a mere attribute of a political "nationality" for Jews.

MR. COLEMAN'S letter referred to recent cases of "an abuse of propaganda techniques when Arabs and Jews were involved."

"For example, earlier this year," he recalled, "wide publicity was given to the alleged dire plight of Moroccan Jews. When the right of emigration was restored to Moroccan Jews on a normal basis of individual option, replacing Zionist pressures for organized mass immigration the Israel, the Moroccan Jewish crisis disappeared from the American press."

THE AMERICAN Council for Judaism, however, does not know whether the present publicity campaign about Egyptian Jews is of the same character, Mr. Coleman added.

"We do know," he wrote, "that some nations and organizations now participating in the controversy are the same as those which participated in the Moroccan situation."

"IT IS important to know," Mr. Coleman wrote, "before any final American judgment is formulated:

Whether any action of the government of Egypt is directed against Egyptians on the basis of religious discrimination.

"Whether Egypt's acts were related to widely published—but to us patently false—statements made in the Israeli Knesset by Prime Minister Ben-Gurion on Nov. 7 to the effect that all Jews support the Israeli military action in Egypt.

"Whether any Egyptian action has been on the basis of individual or group affiliations where, considering the tensions of the area, evidence seemed to justify some Egyptian security action.

Israel's Red Cross Shows Drain on Finances

TEL AVIV—The severe drain on the resources of the Mogen David Adom, Israel's Red Cross, as a result of the requirements of the Sinai campaign, were noted here by Dr. Y. Knott, its chairman.

Without curtailing its normal activities, the organization made available to the army and civil defense authorities special resources during the recent emergency.

The MDA also arranged for the care of Egyptian wounded prisoners of war and provided a mobile dispensary and an emergency hospital dispensary for the more severe cases. In addition, mail of the POWs was transmitted and contact maintained for them with their families.

Dr. Knott also pointed out that during the crisis, the MDA continued to maintain its 44 branches in Israel, and provided uninterrupted ambulance and first aid service.

"IT HAS even been admitted," Mr. Coleman wrote, "by some that the situation about which they speak publicly is of an 'ambiguous' character."

Israeli Prime Minister Ben-Gurion's reported speech to the Israeli Knesset on Nov. 28 "contributed to the confusion about the Jews of Egypt," Mr. Coleman asserted, "by projecting a spiritual concept into what is clearly and unmistakably a political situation."

"We do know," he wrote, "that some nations and organizations now participating in the controversy are the same as those which participated in the Moroccan situation."

"IT IS important to know," Mr. Coleman wrote, "before any final American judgment is formulated:

Whether any action of the government of Egypt is directed against Egyptians on the basis of religious discrimination.

"Whether Egypt's acts were related to widely published—but to us patently false—statements made in the Israeli Knesset by Prime Minister Ben-Gurion on Nov. 7 to the effect that all Jews support the Israeli military action in Egypt.

ISRAEL NOW GROWING ALL IT CAN EAT—REPORT

TEL AVIV (NJP)—A rosy picture of the farming situation in Israel, with the nation producing all that the country can absorb, was painted here by N. Verlinsky, director of Tnuva, the central marketing agency for most of the country's farm produce.

Verlinsky said that farmers are producing so much now that the home market has reached the saturation point in some products.

HE TOLD ALSO of increased exports, apart from citrus. He declared that over 9 million eggs and 1,200 tons of bananas had been exported last year, and that this year's export of eggs should reach 20 million.

The marketing head recommended that acreage for production of vegetables not be expanded over last year when surpluses caused thousands of tons of tomatoes to be destroyed in order to avoid depressing the market.

Why pay more for
than you need to?

Ministers Life and Casualty Union . . . actually sells a $6,000 policy at the same price as the usual $5,000 policy!

Why should rabbis, rabbinical students or cantors buy life insurance elsewhere when they are entitled to a lower cost "preferred risk" policy? Professional religious workers may benefit by legal reserve life insurance at a much lower rate.

The Savings are substantial. An individual can buy our insurance at $2 to $7 per thousand less, depending on his age and the type of policy.

New, Double Protection Plan gives you twice as much insurance at only 25 to 35 per cent added cost. As an example: At 35 years of age, a man pays only $55.43 the first year and $73.43 thereafter for a $5,000 policy on the double protection plan. Think what $5,000 would mean to your family.

Disability protection is an optional benefit. If you wish, your MLCU policy can include permanent total disability protection with waiver of premiums. ($10 Per month benefit per $1,000 held.)

New Envoy To Italy States Jewish Views

By LOUIS JANOFSKY

National Jewish POST Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO—In his first interview with a Jewish paper, J. D. Zellerbach, newly appointed U. S. Ambassador to Italy, asserted that Zionism is no longer an issue.

"The State of Israel is in existence," he declared.

The head of the $450 million Crown-Zellerbach empire, who at one time served as vice-president of Temple Emanu-El (Reform), said that "Jews have a more favorable and secure position in the United States today than in any other place in the World, and I see no reason why this position should not be maintained as long as we continue to behave as good Americans."

MR. ZELLERBACH believes that Jewish institutions should place particular emphasis on religious education. He feels that there is no such thing as too much education and that the more Jewish children are taught of their heritage the better Americans and Jews they will be.

Among Mr. Zellerbach's numerous activities he has also served as a director of Jewish Community Publications, Inc., which publishes the Jewish Community Bulletin, local Jewish weekly.

HE POLITELY declined to be drawn into a discussion of American Jewish organizational affairs—feeling that because of his new diplomatic obligations it would be inappropriate.

He enjoys, he said, a friendly acquaintance with Abba Eban and Reuven Shiloah, Israel's envoys to Washington:

BRASH VANDALS KEEP UP ATTACKS ON SYNAGOGUE

PHILADELPHIA (NJP)—Police and the Philadelphia Jewish Community Relations Council are seeking a group of boys responsible for two incidents of vandalism at the West Philadelphia Jewish Community Center.

The first incident occurred on a Friday night while services were being conducted. As the congregants were leaving the main section of the Temple to enter a wing that faces Ludlow street they heard the sound of breaking glass. Investigation revealed that 11 windows had been broken. Bricks, stones and tin cans were found in the room.

On Monday, three days later, while classes were being conducted in the Hebrew school, stones and tin cans were thrown through the windows of a class room on the second floor of the main synagogue. Rushing outside, the janitor saw a group of boys holding the missiles in their hands. They fled.

SEND FLOUR

HAIFA—The UNRWA sent a shipment of 400 tons of flour, which arrived here recently, and which will be sent by rail to the Arab refugees in Gaza.

Face Cracked

The marred statue of Haym Salomon (above), which was moved from its original location in a Los Angeles park to foil vandals, should now be moved again, a spokesman for the Jewish War Veterans said. The nose and part of the face were cracked by hoodlums.

LONDON—The possibility that Jews might be blamed, if because of the Suez crisis, economic conditions worsened in England, was voiced in a panel discussion here, according to The Jewish Chronicle.

The Hon. Ewen E. S. Montagu, president of the United Synagogue, asserted that he was very nervous regarding what might happen in the future. "We get the credit for Israeli actions," he said, "but I am disturbed that should there be another turn in events we should be held responsible for things over which, of course, we had no control."

Turning to the Jewish press, two of the four speakers took the view that stronger expression of opinion might result if another Jewish paper, in addition to the Jewish Chronicle, were established.

Mr. Montagu demurred. "The Jewish community is in a bad enough state without having Jewish press lords." He spoke highly of the ability of the Chronicle to hold the balance between the various sections of the community.

The fourth member of the panel was William Frankel, general manager of the Chronicle.

CONGRESSMAN CELLER LAUDS POST FOR DRIVE

I take this opportunity of extending my best wishes for your future success.

Anshe Emet Children Respond To Appeal

Editor, National Jewish POST:

Our school was very much impressed with your appeal for the Red Mogen David as well as with the appeal of Congressman Celler for this very worthwhile cause at this time. We therefore presented this problem to the children of our religious schools. Our usual collection on a Sunday morning for Keren Ami is between $20 and $25 each Sunday. However, the gravity of the situation in Israel and the subsequent need for monies was so strongly felt on that Sunday, Nov. 25, our children contributed $75.

We are indeed very happy to send the enclosed check to you.

Ambulance Drive Going Good As Total Goes Over $3,000

The POST fund to provide an ambulance for Israel's Mogen David Adom had its best week of the drive as almost $650 was contributed to move the total over the $3,000 mark. The amount given to date is $3,160.34, and is more than 75 per cent of the $4,000 required for the fully equipped ambulance.

Jewish school children from all parts of the United States, making their gifts through their regular weekly collections for charity, continued to set the pace. The Sunday school of Congregation Shearith Israel in Dallas, Tex., turned in $145, with three other schools, Anshe Emet in Chicago, Adath Jeshurun in Minneapolis, and B'nai Jacob in Mansfield, O., sending in $75, $53.79 and $40, respectively.

A HADASSAH chapter joined the ranks of the givers when the Evansville, Ind., chapter forwarded $30.85 collected at a recent meeting.

The flood of gifts from schools has led officials of The POST to consider seriously the idea of painting on the ambulance a legend which would indicate that the Jewish school children of the United States participated to a great degree in making possible the ambulance.

IF THE present pace of giving continues, the drive should be concluded no later than in the next two weeks. This should make it possible for the ambulance to be on its way to Israel in a short time.

Gifts to the ambulance fund are tax exempt.

In honor of this occasion, our rabbi, Dr. Hillel Silverman, principal of our religious school Mr. Pincus Silverman announced the entire Keren Ami fund of last Sunday would go toward the Ambulance Fund for Mogen David Adom.

The enthusiasm of the children and their generous response was most heart-warming. They were thrilled with the opportunity of helping Israel directly. They made a special effort to contribute most generously on that day.

Warm, Human Interest Stories Aimed At Pleasing The Entire Family!

'Parents' To Over 60 Children Can't Stop Asking For More

By RUBY ZAGOREN

National Jewish POST Correspondent

TORRINGTON, Conn.—The Myer Friedmans of Hartford have been "parents" to 64 children, more than any other family on the roles of the Hartford Jewish Social Service, and they can't stop asking for more.

Last May, after giving homes to 60 foster children, the Friedmans decided they had done enough. Mrs. Friedman took a job outside the home.

"BUT WE missed the children terribly," she said. "My husband pleaded with me to call the agency and ask them to send more children around."

She did.

Now Mrs. Friedman has her hands full with a two-month-old baby, a 4½-year-old boy, and a 13-year-old boy, who is staying with her until conditions at home improve, so he can return, or until he can go on to a more permanent foster home.

SAYING GOOD-BYE to the children is the "toughest part of being a foster mother," says Mrs. Friedman. "I get used to the idea of their leaving by saying to myself, maybe tomorrow there will be another, and maybe it will be a baby when the doorbell rings."

Usually, when foster children leave the Friedmans, the foster parents do not keep any contact with them. Social workers from the Jewish Social Service here have told them it is best not to.

THE FRIEDMANS have one exception, however. He is David.

David first came to live with the Friedmans, 68 Mansfield St., Hartford, when he was 13, a refugee from Germany. His parents were killed during the war. He stayed with the Friedmans until he entered the service at 18.

"WHEN DAVID first came to live with us," Mrs. Friedman recalls, "he didn't speak a word of English. And Marvin, my son, didn't speak a word of German. But they became great pals."

Now David is studying engineering at Boston University. Next June, he will be best man at the Friedmans' son's wedding.

Mrs. Friedman began her "career" when her own two children were in school and she found time weighing heavily.

THEN SHE heard a plea for foster homes; and discussed the idea with her family. She called the agency, and it wasn't long until the Friedman home became lively with children.

Mrs. Friedman said her husband, Myer, a driver-salesman, loves having the children in the house. He helps by walking the floor with the babies at night.

How long does it take to make a child comfortable in a strange home? "It depends on how much hurt he's had before he comes."

When the doorbell rings, Mrs. Friedman knows that the caller may be a social worker with another child for her. She has room in her eight-room house and in her heart for all of them.

SCHARY UPHOLDS RIGHT TO AID SPECIAL CAUSES

NEWARK, N.J. (NJP)—Dore Schary, Hollywood film notable, believes that each group and religion has a right to contribute to special as well as general causes.

Schary, who is being dropped from his job as MGM production boss, made his assertion at a Jewish Community Foundation building dinner here Dec. 3. The dinner netted pledges totaling $1,550,000 for the fund, which will help build new Jewish community center buildings in Newark and Irvington and a home for the aged and chronic sick in suburban West Orange.

STRESSING THE need for donations, Schary recalled his early training in dramatics at the former YM-YWHA in Newark. He noted that playwright Moss Hart had been a contemporary of his at the Newark Y as a director.

"My work at the Y," he said, "gave me valuable schooling for the lucky years that followed."

PRESENTED a plaque which contained a doorknob from the old Y building, Schary got a laugh when he quipped that it might get him a job at the new Y, since he was job-hunting.

The movie magnate noted that Catholics and Protestants as well as Jews have each made certain charities their special responsibilities, adding: "There is nothing wrong with special interests so long as they work for the best interests of the entire community."

3 OF 4 SAY YES, 4TH, WOMAN, WANTS TO WAIT

LONDON—Three of four speakers in a panel discussion here approved of Marilyn Monroe as "a welcome addition to the Jewish faith," while the fourth participant, the lone woman, reserved judgment.

E. S. Birk, a director of the Sunday Pictorial, answering promptly, asserted "Undoubtedly."

M. J. Hart-Leverton agreed that the wife of playwright Arthur Miller would be "an asset," while David Kessler, managing director of the Jewish Chronicle, said that the lady in question seemed to possess several attributes of great charm. He added that she would be a welcome addition to Jewish social gatherings.

The one dissenting opinion was Mrs. Leonard Stein's. She recalled that Miss Monroe had been married by a Reform rabbi with the understanding that she would continue her training in Judaism after her recent trip to England. She concluded that we must wait and see whether she would be a welcome addition to the Jewish faith.

Non-Kosher Dinner Criticized By Rabbi

LINDEN, N.J.—His amazement that the B'nai B'rith auxiliary here would hold a non-kosher dinner was expressed by Rabbi Aharon Shapiro in the Shofar of Congregation Anshe Chesed. Rabbi Shapiro pointed out that the national B'nai B'rith, as almost all Jewish communal organizations, hold functions in accordance with Jewish dietary laws.

Your Name

Want to know what your name means? Address your questions to Mr. Pearlroth, National Jewish Post, Box 1633, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

By N. PEARLROTH

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: My father came to this country from Rohatyn, Galicia. Please tell me the origin of our name, Handsman. The Yiddish pronunciation as I've heard it has a Germanic sounding interpretation.—JACK HANDSMAN, Jackson Heights 70, New York.

HANDSMAN, more correctly Hancman, is a Polish vernacular term denoting "a man connected with the excise, a tax on spirituous beverages, sugar, beer, tobacco and matches. Your original ancestor was either a collector of such taxes or a contractor who rented the collection from the government paying his rental fee in advance.

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: Would appreciate your telling me the origin of my mother's maiden name, Kartagener. She came from Galicia, Austria. Thank you.—MRS. PAULINE MANDEL, Bronx 68, New York.

KARTAGENER is a curious family name. It is derived from a variety of beans known in Polish as bob. To distinguish it from other beans this particular kind was known as Kartagienski bob, or Carthaginian beans, based on the belief that the plant originally grew in Carthage in North Africa. The family name which is a Yiddish translation of Kartagienski is a trade name. Your original ancestor must have specialized in this particular kind of bean, which, prepared in a certain way, was renowned as a Jewish Friday-night delicacy.

Attend Convention. He Tells Hank

Dear Hank:

I read your column in The National Jewish POST, and I think you should try and go to the convention. I went to one, and it was very nice. It was a good experience for me, and I was only 16 at the time.

Everyone behaved well, and the boys did everything they were told. We learned a lot of interesting things, and I met lots of nice boys from other states.

I'm sure if you try you might be able to get your mother to change her mind.

If you go, I'm sure you will have lots of fun. I wish you luck.

I think a page devoted to teenagers is an excellent idea.

In my opinion, it should contain teen-age problems and possible solutions, fads throughout the country, original writings, jokes, and a column dealing with college—choosing a college, preparation, finances, etc.

Lack of Electricity Has Changed Life In Israel

By CARL ALPERT.

HAIFA—While the United Nations continues its endless debates, and the great powers alternately threaten or sulk, and rumors of the massing of troops on one or another border constitute the headlines of the day, the Israeli, while certainly far from oblivious to these stirring events, busies himself more with the immediate task of adjusting to a new life of austerity. For whatever greater degree of security the Sinai campaign may have brought to Israel's southern border, and irrespective of the general belief that a regional peace is closer today than it has ever been in the past eight years, the fact remains that the closing of the Suez canal and the near rupture of relations with the Soviet Union have had a serious effect on the internal life of the country.

Of the many aspects that have been touched, the one most immediately felt is that bound up with the shortage of oil.

BECAUSE WE refuse to play ball with Russia, and exposed their plans for a Communist offensive in the Middle East, the rulers of the Kremlin now refuse to sell us oil. In its role of moralist schoolteacher of the world, the United States also refuses to sell us their oil. Other sources have become increasingly unavailable to us, as they are drawn upon by Britain and France, who are also, to a degree, being "punished" by Mr. Dulles.

In Israel everything runs on oil or its by-products. The operation of our whole irrigation system, the jugular vein of the country, depends on oil. Fortunately we are now entering the rainy season. All transport in the country—railroads, trucks, private cars, and army vehicles of all kinds—depend on oil. But chief of all, electricity supply of the country is generated by oil-operated power plants. No oil—no electricity.

And so we are now living in a spartan period of strict regulation and control of electric power. What this may mean to industry and the problems of equitable rationing of power for productive purposes may well be imagined. For the moment, I will confine myself to the effect which such regulation has upon the daily life of the residents—for an entire new set of habits must be learned.

FOR ONE thing, every housewife has become an authority on kilowatts and kilowatt hours.

She knows her monthly ration which she is allowed, dependent on the size of her apartment; she has learned to read the electric meter, and she watches it regularly to make sure that she is living within her ration.

Illumination has, of course, been sharply curtailed. We are limited to one 60-watt bulb per room.

How quickly one learns the habit of switching off lights when going from room to room. The toaster, we learn, is a great consumer of power, and that has been consigned to a back shelf in the pantry. The iron is another hungry appliance, and its use is rigidly restricted. Only the most essential clothing is ironed. Bed sheets are just as clean when not ironed. And how grateful we are for our dacron shirts.

Most homes in Israel heat their hot water supply electrically. We have learned to our horror that if the boiler is switched on for only six hours, from midnight to 6 a.m., it consumes no less than 9 kilowatts of power, or as much as a week of other normal household use. Result: Hot water only once a week.

MEMBERS OF the family who insist upon being clean can take sponge baths with water heated over the kerosene burner. Kerosene is for the time being still available, though we look forward with some dread to the day when the supply may dwindle.

(Our young Joel regards the limitation of hot baths to once a week as something of a perpetual reward!)

We have learned to accumulate the necessary trips, and to open the refrigerator door only every once in a while, with each list of foods to be inserted or extracted carefully planned in advance.

We find that people have become more sociable. There seems to be a greater desire to spend an evening out at someone else's home, consuming their 60 watts rather than one's own.

Every other street light has been extinguished for the evening hours, and for night-time all street lights are out except on the main avenues. Use of electricity for window display or advertising purposes is banned, and so all the color has gone out of the shopping areas of an evening.

Very much the same is happening in all of Western Europe, we understand. We realize, as we good naturedly adapt ourselves to this austerity, that all this is part of the "punishment" coming to us from Uncle Sam because we dared to oppose Communist infiltration in the Middle East and because we insist on resisting aggression and hostility.

PLAY PRODUCER JUST BACK

Sees Israeli Sarah Bernhardt

By MILT SHIELDS

National Jewish Post Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—Israel will produce a Sarah Bernhardt, in the estimation of Benjamin Zemach, choreographer for Hollywood Bowl productions, who recently returned from a year in the Jewish state.

"There's an expression in Israel which holds the key to acting greatness," continued Zemach. "The word is 'dugree.' It means 'straight from the shoulder, no beating around the bush.'

"That's life in Israel today. People speak straightforward . . . because life is that way. That kind of life, that approach cannot fail to produce great actors and actresses."

ZEMACH WENT to Israel to teach actors for the Habima Workshop theater, a training group for Israel's leading theater. The leading group was founded by Zemach's late brother Nahum.

He thinks that so far no young actress has outstripped the "first lady of the Israel theater," Chana Rovina, or shown more talent than the next three ranking actresses, Chana Miron, Orna Pirat, or Miriam Zohar.

Talking about other types of acting, Zemach said there's always a place in the Jewish tradition for laughter in the Sholem Aleichem vein.

ISRAEL HAS two great comedians, Rafael Klatzkin, of Habima, and Margolite of the Ohel theater . . .

"Margolite starred for many months in 'Good Soldier Schweig' . . .

"A European Yiddish comedy team, which visits Israel every year, wows 'em.

"But," he added, "the likelihood of Israel turning out an Eddie Cantor, Jack Benny, or Milton Berle is slim."

Israeli comedians, he felt, stress scenes and situations, not glib monologues written by script writers.

FOR DRAMA in general, Zemach said there are more than 100 groups presenting plays in Israel, and playing to capacity audiences.

Every kibbutz has a drama group of its own, with audiences ranging from 20 people to several thousand, he explained. One open-air performance, he mentioned, drew more than 5,000 persons.

"The professional theater in Israel is truly mobile," he said also. "Each of Tel Aviv's major houses puts on two performances each evening . . . one in the theater and one in settlements or for troops stationed on the borders.

BENJAMIN ZEMACH
Taught Acting Is Israel

AS FOR movies, "It's infantile," he declared.

"The biggest man there, Baruch Dinar, is trying to do 'better films,' but on the whole the industry is very much in its infancy . . ."

Among the productions directed by Zemach for Habima was a Hebrew version of Thornton Wilder's "Skin of Our Teeth." He also brought back about a dozen scripts by Israeli playwrights and plans to produce at least two in Los Angeles during 1956-57.

WHILE IN Israel, he also held classes for stage directors under the auspices of Histadrut, Israel's general federation of labor, and served as advisor to the Yemenite dance group. The dance group, Zemach disclosed, will be brought to the United States next year by impresario Zol Hurok.

About the plays he brought back, Zemach said "that the real life drama being enacted on Israel's borders, under the very shadow of the Arab guns, has been faithfully captured by its dramatists. It is really fine theater with tremendous appeal."

Zemach said also that Habima has asked him to return to Israel as its permanent director, and he may do so eventually.

First time I ever saw a want days and, as it is listed, "modern on the society page, but you earn practice." can't say that Food Machinery and Chemical corp., whose ad it was, didn't know what it was doing.

The ad read: "Wives—would you like to live in San Jose, Cal. (near San Francisco)? Is your husband a draftsman or engineer? See our ad in classified."

Could this be an indication there has been a change in the old custom of the wife vowing, "Whither thou goest, I will go" to make it now read "Where I desire to live, there you will labor?" Certainly seems to be the conclusion reached by Food Machinery and Chemical corp.

A NEW class at our temple will feature the preparation of foods for the Sabbath and Holidays, and while the foods are cooking, the presentation of such pertinent material as the historical background, appropriate songs for the various holidays, and why up to modern days our women were able to hand down so positively through long generations the many details of Jewish cookery. We can credit it to the practice of married daughters continuing to live at them.)

With their other directing the preparation of food as long as she lived, daughters had many more years to observe and learn, to practice and become skilled at the job until it became their turn to act as instructor, to pass on the knowledge to their own pupils.

In the meantime, I find intriguing that part of the temple class which is listed as "modern practice" and perhaps I can report to you later what is referred to. Canned Soups, Rice, Dried Peas Handy If You Hate To Brave Weather

By SARAH LIEBER

The wintry winds blow, and do a big marketing once or twice a week, and then fill in only if absolutely necessary. Be sure the shelves are amply provided with such staples as dried peas and beans, for soups. The instant products, such as rice and dehydrated potatoes, and a good supply of frozen foods come in handy. Canned kosher soups may be used as a base for many dishes.

In bobba's day there was a cool cellar for storing potatoes, carrots, apples and cabbage. We have no such storage possibilities, but we do have the advantages of modern processes to lighten our menu planning.

QUICK CHOLENT

(Recipe from Rokeach)
4 lbs. first cut brisket
1 clove garlic, sliced
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. paprika
pinch of pepper
1 cup chopped onions
1 can Rokeach lima bean soup
6 potatoes
6 carrots

Cut small pockets in meat. Insert slices of garlic. Mix the seasonings together and pat into the meat. Sear the meat on all sides in a large kettle. Add onions, and cook until tender but not brown. Add lima bean soup.

Cover tightly and simmer slowly 2½ hours. Turn the meat from time to time. Add water if needed. Add potatoes and carrots. Cook 30 minutes longer or until the vegetables are tender.

Note: This may be cooked in the pressure cooker 1½ hours at 10 pounds.

Serves 6.

CANNED SOUP COMBINATIONS

1 cup shredded carrot
1 cup shredded celery root (celeriac)

1 cup shredded white turnip
½ tsp. salt

pepper to taste

¼ cup salad dressing (mayonnaise or vinegar and oil dressing)

chopped parsley to garnish

Use either food chopper or a shredder to shred vegetables. Blend with seasonings. Add dressing, home-made or purchased. Blend thoroughly. Serve on lettuce or other greens. Garnish as desired.

Serves 6.

WINTER FRUIT SALAD

1 unpeeled red apple, diced
2 bananas, sliced
2 oranges, peeled and sliced
1 grapefruit, sectioned
½ cup pitted dates, cut into small pieces
½ cup walnuts, or other nuts
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
lemon juice

To prevent apples and bananas from browning, sprinkle with lemon juice as soon as they are cut. Mix fruits with dressing. Garnish with nutmeats.

Some Well-Covered 'Skull Sessions'

By GEORGE VASS

ALTHOUGH MOST college from the viewpoint of lily-white basketball teams hold their amateurism — it has been common "skull sessions" under cover, it's piled by a team of boys who a cinch that the most novel one ply the game for the pure fun employed is that worn by the team of a New York school.

Proof of its efficacy can be found in the team's record last season: 16 Won, 2 lost.

Hold on! No telegrams, phone calls, letters or flying visits by desperate basketball coaches or alumni are necessary. Without cost or obligation the secret is here revealed.

The covers are plain, common, everyday yarmulkes and they decorate the unusually well-packed skulls of Yeshiva University's cagers. Yeshiva's 16 and 2 record, while not racked up against the likes of Kansas, Louisville, North Carolina or San Francisco, nevertheless is creditable in any company.

AND BETTER YET—at least,

-Sarah Lieber

small can evaporated milk (undiluted)
1½ cups sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts
1½ cups semi-sweet chocolate bits

Mix the milk, sugar and salt together in a saucepan. Heat to the boiling point, lower heat and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from the heat. Add the remaining ingredients. Return to the fire for five minutes more or until thickened. Pour into a greased 9-inch square pan. Cool until firm.

A Word To The Wives

With a hearty and nourishing soup, all you need to round out the meal is a substantial salad, hot rolls or bread and a good dessert. Just be sure all the basic food elements are present in the meal. Beans, nuts, peanuts and such are good protein substitutes for meat. And use cheeses often to fill out the salad meal. They provide the needed nutrition.

I have been asked to pass on to you the good news that Vita brand kosher fish delicacies are now available to Jewish consumers in most parts of the country. Kashrut supervision has been extended to the Chicago plant, which makes wider distribution possible. Vita herring and salad products are good for that snack.

"They tell me they can't come to practice and I ask: 'Why?,' and they say: 'Gotta study,' and what can I say?" explains Coach Bernie (Red) Sarachek. "Studies come first with these kids but basketball is a challenge they meet. That they have time to play basketball is a miracle."

That may be so, but that they get away with it is even a greater one. How long would the fellows on one of the "big-time" squads last if they skipped practice with such a lousy excuse as having to study? They'd lose their athletic scholarships faster than one can say Jackie Robinson.

NO SUCH DANGER at Yeshiva University. There are no athletic scholarships — in fact, the school doesn't even have its own basketball court. Practice is held in a high school gym.

Those "skull sessions" mentioned earlier often feature men in motion—especially when they are held on the 8th Ave. subway, with team members gathered around Coach Sarachek and his portable blackboard.

With all these difficulties it seems almost inconceivable that Yeshiva has developed a basketball player of the first rank—Irwin Blumenreich, named to the All-City squad last year.

Sarachek thinks Blumenreich, a dental student, is good enough to star on any college team in the nation.

He'll have a chance to prove it again this season in leading the Mighty Mites of Yeshiva through a 19-game schedule.

And, who knows, if the boys from the Washington Heights area of New York match last year's record, it may revolutionize the yarmulke industry.

But that bit about study being more important than practice—will never sell.

A. BUXTON, TENNIS CHAMP, TO BE MARRIED

LONDON — Angela Buxton, runner-up in the women's singles in the Wimbledon tennis championships, has announced her engagement to a London businessman, Barney Goodman. The wedding will take place next Thursday in the Liberal Jewish Synagogue.

Following the remarkable improvement this year shown in her play at Wimbledon, Miss Buxton left for the United States where she planned to play at the Forest Hills championships. Illness forced her to return to England.

She has regained her form, however, and last week end won the women's singles of the national covered courts championships here.

The Judges downed Suffolk Monday evening with a final score of 54-40. They showed surprising strength on offense Wednesday when they routed Bridgeport, 64-44. Coach Harry Stein has the Eagles, the final score ready very little bench strength and counted on his starting five to play most of every game.

THE TYPE of running game which the Judges employ got its real test in a thrilling game against Boston college Saturday evening to a tension-packed crowd. Longtime basketball rivals, the two teams have alternated wins and losses over the past several years.

The teams seemed evenly matched from the very beginning; the half ended with Brandeis leading by a small margin. With three minutes to go in the fourth quarter, Boston suddenly took a three-point lead. With 1½ minutes of game time remaining, the Judges tied, and then took a 4-point lead over

HUNGARIAN JEWESS WINS 2 GOLD MEDALS

MELBOURNE—Agnes Keleti, Hungarian Jewish woman gymnast, won two gold medals at the Olympic Games here. She was first in both the parallel bars event and in the free standing event.

However, she shared first place in the free standing competition with the Russia woman, L. Latynina.

Miss Keleti also won a silver medal when she placed second in the combined exercises event.

In Varsity Sports

Boston U. Boasts 3 Top Jewish Stars

BOSTON (NJP)—Three outstanding athletes on Boston University varsity teams are Larry Vinecour, Nate Koppel and Henry Levin.

Vinecour, just elected co-captain of the 1957 Terrier football team, is the third Jewish captain in the 64 years of Boston U. football.

He moved into prominence in his sophomore year when injuries sidelined starters at the guard position.

As a junior, Vinecour played behind All-American candidate Lou Lovely, but in the final contests was switched from left guard to the right guard position and started.

Larry was an All-County Westchester guard while attending New Rochelle (N.Y.) high school, as well as being a three-sport letterman in football, wrestling and track.

The 21-year-old 5'9" athlete is a Dean's list geology major in the college of liberal arts. He is also an officer in the Army ROTC, and is active in Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity.

JUNIOR Nate Koppel of New Britain, Conn., is a starter for the Terrier basketball team in winter and the top hitter for the university baseball team in the spring.

A high scorer for his freshman cage team, Koppel hit his peak about half way through the varsity season when he broke into the first five.

The 6'2" guard scored 107 points during his first varsity year and was awarded the Most Improved Player trophy at the season's conclusion.

AN OUTSTANDING scholastic athlete at New Britain high and president of his senior class there, Nate will be the play maker of this year's basketball team. A sure ball handler, Koppel is deadly on outside shots and is a top rebounder.

A third baseman throughout this scholastic career, Koppel was switched to first base last spring and stayed at that spot all season.

HENRY LEVIN of Weymouth, Mass., is the No. 1 goalie on the varsity hockey team.

The winner of his varsity letter in his sophomore year, this junior skater stands only 5'6" tall, but does a tremendous job blocking opponents' shots.

The Terrier skaters this year are the strongest group since the 1952-53 team that went to the national NCAA finals in Colorado.

Levin's father, a prominent Boston attorney, is also a graduate of Boston U.

Student Anti-Zionist Publication Folds

NEW YORK (NJP)—The Youth Bulletin, a periodic mimeographed summary of current events of interest to American Jewish students, marked its first anniversary with an announcement that it was discontinuing publication.

Editor Allan C. Brownfeld attributed the paper's demise to the editorial staff's need to prepare for careers and being "caught up with our studies and plans for the future."

The paper took a strongly anti-Zionist stand.

REFUGEES MAKE OUTSTANDING FARMERS

By RUBY ZAGOREN

National Jewish Post Correspondent

A number of Jewish people during recent years migrated to the United States, settled on the land, and become outstanding farmers.

Most of them never did any farming before coming here.

Louis Goldschmidt was one of these.

HE CAME from Nazi Germany in 1937 on a temporary visa, and to stay in this country permanently had to get a deed to a farm. The Jewish Agricultural Society helped him, and just a day or two before his visa expired he acquired 180 acres in Windsor, N. Y. His land was stocked with poor cattle, and he had little equipment, but that did not deter him. He brought his wife, son, and daughter to this country. He bought more land and gradually built up his herd, which is now accredited, tuberculosis - tested, registered stock.

Later, his son went to Cornell, where he majored in dairy farming.

TODAY, Goldschmidt and his son have one of the best farms in the area, and are counted among the outstanding farmers of the area.

Another family, the Siegfried Levys, are an exception to the rule. They were dairy farmers in Germany before they were forced to flee the Nazi terror.

When they first arrived in the United States, they settled on a run-down dairy farm in Abington, Conn., and developed one of the highest-producing herds in their county.

ONE SON, Harry Levy, bought a dairy farm of his own nearby. When his health failed, Harry turned to poultry farming and is now located in Middleboro, Mass.

THE ARTS

ROHR SEEN AS LACKING
MATURITY; ISRAELI ART
ASSOCIATES IS FORMED

BY JOSEPH GALE

It is hard to know who the main attraction is these days at the Theodor Herzl Institute in New York—Joel Rohr, the slight, greying, Israeli artist showing water colors and serigraphs of Israel, or Miss Sylvia Ansen, one of the most unabashed publicists, who in her marathon love affair with the youngest democracy, has undertaken to make Rohr's work known to the populace. Both crave is simply an audience, and this is virtually impossible to attain outside of Israel. And this is where Miss Ansen enters bound, Rohr speaks with the shy intensity of one whose love goes beyond speech.

The love of Rohr, a native Pole and one-time American, is Israel, even if the kibbutz—Kfar Menahem—and farms, is within sight of Jordanian snipers.

His painting reveal his abiding affection. They are spread with the bright sunny color, the pastoral, agrarian quality of the land. There is a tentativeness about some of the water colors that lends a suggestion of enchantment, and there are, at times, touches of real art—in the way a brush stroke is handled, for example, in the hint of a larger feeling which barely gets onto canvas.

ROHR mainly paints the surrounding countryside, which he knows best, and his guileless honesty perhaps compensates for what he lacks as an artist. His wooden treatment of figures indicates a confinement still to the glibness of muralism, and he does not draw well, so landscape may be a temporary refuge.

The truth is that Rohr, at 44, has not yet matured as an artist. There is a profound feeling at work, and a number of his things show startling signs of beauty, but Rohr needs to spend more time at his easel and with a teacher before aspiring, for instance, to museum status.

WE HAD a long, interesting talk with him (he returns home soon), and he spoke about his life and commitments as a farmer in the kibbutz. When does he paint? In the evenings if not on armed patrol, on his days off, or a day away from the fields when the committee of the settlement will permit.

"Sometimes when I am working on the tractor, I want to paint so bad, it burns inside of me," Rohr said wistfully. Yet he is satisfied and apparently fulfilled, and would not trade his lot with anyone, least of all an Israeli urbanite. "Some of them can starve!"

What Rohr and all his fellows

Looking Backward

20 YEARS AGO—1936

Hadassah petitioned the government of Palestine to grant immigration certificates to Jewish children of Poland. The government had granted special youth certificates for children brought from Germany by the Youth Aliyah movement.

15 YEARS AGO—1941

More than 20,000 Jewish refugees were reported marooned in Shanghai as war with Japan was declared.

10 YEARS AGO—1946

Delegates to a World Zionist Congress in Basle, Switzerland, applauded and stamped their feet when Dr. Abba Hillel Silver declared that many Zionists considered the Jewish Agency partition proposal an "error in judgment" carried out in an "unfortunate way." Silver also blamed American Jewish organizations for failing to convince the American government of the necessity for removing the Jews from Europe immediately after the war, and criticized the United States for inadequate efforts to solve the "greatest humanitarian problem in modern history."

Soap made from fat from Jewish corpses in German crematoria was found among immigrants who arrived in Palestine from Europe. The immigrants said they were given the soap, with contents clearly marked on the wrappers, while in UNRRA camps in Europe . . . Clauses were inserted in the peace treaties with Hungary and Rumania insuring the restoration of civil rights and the restitution of property to Jews in those countries . . . Illegal crossing of the Polish-Czechoslovakian border by Jews attempting to reach the American zones of Germany and Austria came to a standstill. Severe winter weather was given as one of the reasons for the halt.

FIVE YEARS AGO—1951

Unarmed Jewish War Veterans began an around-the-clock watch at a Miami synagogue, when a stick of dynamite was thrown at the synagogue only one week after another synagogue and Hebrew school were bombed . . . the Zionist Organization of America rejected a Jewish Agency statement that individual food-for-Israel campaigns tend to divert attention from UJA and Israel Bond drives, and proceeded with a food-for-Israel drive.

HOLLYWOOD — A stirring demonstration of interfaith cooperation and harmony was provided in this community last week by the USO-Jewish Welfare Board.

The occasion was the third annual Hanukkah-Christmas program staged for some 400 GIs from nearby military installations and wheelchair patients from veterans hospitals in this area.

Beverly Hills B'nai B'rith Lodge picked up the entire tab, as it did last year.

Rabbi Edgar Magnin told the group the significance of the holiday seasons. Greetings of the military were extended by Chaplain Robert Saffer of nearby March Air Force Base.

The inter-faith program was broadcast to military personnel around the world via Armed Radio Service. Portions of it were rebroadcast to some 250 NBC affiliates in the United States.

'Advocate' Publisher Awarded 2 Honors

BOSTON (NJP)—Two honors came this week to Dr. Alexander Brin, publisher of the Jewish Advocate, local Jewish weekly.

Emerson college awarded a degree of doctor of literature to the noted publisher, who is dean of the Massachusetts State Board of Education, and last Sunday the Achdus Lodge of B'nai B'rith named him "Man of the Year."

PROPHETS, CHINESE GREAT BOTH WERE REFORMERS

PROPHECY AND RELIGION IN ANCIENT CHINA AND ISRAEL, by H. H. Rowley, $2.75 (Harper).

Perhaps only Dr. Rowley could have written this comparison and contrast between the Old Testament prophets and their contemporary Chinese great—Confucius, Mencius, Mo-tzu. He is one of the world's great Old Testament scholars, who has spent considerable time teaching in China.

After attempting the difficult task of defining prophecy, the author presents his subjects as statesmen (the Chinese sought rule, the Hebrews tried to influence the rulers), as reformers, as prognosticators of a better age, and as divine preachers. The Chinese and the Hebrews are shown alike in matters of state and the coming

Rabbi, Wife, Brother Killed In Bombing

LONDON—The Jewish Chronicle here, in a dispatch from its Paris correspondent, reports the death of Rabbi Aziza and his wife and brother, as a result of a bomb placed by Algerian terrorists.

The terrorists, who hid the time bomb in the rabbi's house, accused Rabbi Aziza of being the supply agent to the French army. The Chronicle reported also that 20 persons, not identified by the paper as Jews or not, were killed and 21 others wounded when another bomb exploded in the house of a Jew, M. Mizoum. He also was accused of aiding the French army.

DORE SCHARY NEEDS WORK

Now that Dore Schary is looking for work, we have a suggestion:

Mr. Schary, although a leading figure in the land of make-believe, where almost everything depends on outer looks, has always been a strong, positive Jew. While he might be conferring with some of the screen's top beauties during the day, he could be found working for a Jewish college or a Jewish camp or some cause in which human betterment was the goal, in his spare time, which in Jewish community work means almost 24 hours a day.

But Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has come under new ownership, and Mr. Schary will soon desist from turning the lion's tail which has evoked that remarkably timely growl with which M-G-M productions announced themselves at your theatre.

Looking for work, Mr. Schary went back to his home town, Newark, where he was once an amateur actor and producer at the YMHA, to make a speech. The affair was the building fund drive for a new Jewish center and an old-age home. Mr. Schary's efforts, among others, netted $1,500,000 that evening, and we hold the thesis that the UJA or the Israel Bond organization might do worse than hire him.

Mr. Schary make an intelligent presentation. Here are a few paragraphs from what he said, which we have excerpted from a report in The Jewish News, of Newark:

"If I do not take care of my own family as a special interest, it becomes the responsibility of someone else, and I see nothing dangerous and nothing venal in my assuming obligations for my family—and my family interests then broaden into my responsibility for my city, my state, my nation, my world and my religion."

"If, as a Jew, I can help another Jew become a more responsible member of his community, I have not limited myself to helping a Jew—I have helped my community . . . in the same way that if I can help my children become responsible members of my family, they will become responsible citizens of the world in which they live."

NON-JEWS AS ATTRACTIONS

We offer our congratulations to the Hebrew Theological College of Chicago on the ground-breaking ceremonies last Sunday for its new $5 million campus. The college officials, headed by Rabbi Oscar Z. Fasman, and Max Bressler, the chairman of the building fund, are to be praised for their vision and efforts.

In Europe, academies of higher Jewish learning were spread all throughout the principal cities. In the United States so far there is no Jewish institution of higher learning in the South, the one in Chicago, the Telshe Yeshiva in Cleveland and Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati are the three in the Midwest, and the two now in Los Angeles make up the handful of rabbinical schools away from the Eastern Seaboard.

There has been considerable criticism of our Jewish community for calling on non-Jews whenever some outstanding Jewish occasion was being celebrated. The non-Jew attracted the Jews, the reasoning must have been. This is, of course, something that history will seize upon when it records the growing pains of the United States Jewish community.

But, so far, this lack of self-respect has been most evident in meetings to sell Israel Bonds, or fund-raising affairs for the United Jewish Appeal, although even here it is rapidly disappearing.

At the Hebrew Theological College testimonial dinner that same night to Max Cohen, as lovable and gracious a Jewish person as you would want to know, the principal speaker was Senator Wayne Morse. There is no question about Sen. Morse's friendliness to the Jewish people, but isn't he a little out of place at a banquet to raise funds for a Jewish seminary?

EXTREMISM HOLDS SWAY

The American Council for Judaism is going from bad to worse.

For some time now, the Council has divorced itself even from the fund-raising arms of the United States Jewish community.

The newest action of the Council, which plainly shows that it has little faith in other Jews, is its news release casting doubt on the current difficulties of Egyptian Jews. The impression is even openly given that perhaps the Jews of Egypt deserve this treatment. Israel, the Council insinuates, is blameworthy, which thereby exculpates Nasser.

It's a sorry business, and we can't quite understand what the Council hopes to gain.

Their stand against Jewish all-day schools (NJP, Dec. 7, 1956) fits into the pattern. Why does the Council object if some Jews (or many) wish a more intensive Jewish education for their children?

For a long time, it is our guess, there must have been a restraining influence which prevented some of the extremists in the Council from openly attacking everything the Jewish community holds sacred.

Whatever it is, the extremists in the Council now seem to hold sway, and this being so, we wonder if the Council's actions have the support of some of the people of conviction whom we happen to know hold important roles in the organization?

The EDITOR'S CHAIR . . .

THIS MONTH marks a full year now that the occupant of this chair has been sitting in two seats—and almost at one time. It has been that long since George Vass left our editorial department, where he was managing editor, to take a position with a daily paper.

Partly out of necessity, partly out of nostalgia to get back into my first love—putting out the paper itself—we assumed the managing editor's post.

We've treasured every minute of the work, even those minutes which were after midnight or before 6 a.m., but it's an exacting task, and now we're ready to turn it over to a new employee—managing editor—as soon as we can locate him (or her).

This job requires a talented newspaperman with considerable experience. Someone who can step into the shoes left vacant by competent journalists like Ben Gallo and Moshe Kohn, and, of course, George Vass.

WE OPERATE here in perhaps an odd way—something we've never been able to make people who have complaints about our news handling, understand.

The managing editor is in complete control. The editor, who is I, normally writes only the editorials and the Editor's Chair, although if he attends a convention or stumbles onto a hot news story that doesn't mean that he doesn't cover them.

But weeks have gone by here, under the regimes of our past managing editors, when we never saw the paper until it came off the press. When those who thought they had a beef about the handling of some news story came to me with their grievance, we explained very carefully that we would have to inquire into the matter, because we had no knowledge of where the story came from, or about its handling, etc. No one believed us, we're sure, yet we can't see the intelligence of having a competent editorial department, if they are not to be relied upon.

Under our system, they soon learn self-reliance, or else.

We like the system, and now that we're ready to go back to being publisher only, we're in the market for a managing editor. We hope we can get a good one soon, and if you know of anyone interested in working on the toughest challenge any newspaperman could have, have him write to us.

FOR A NUMBER of years now we've always made a big promotion, either through thousands upon thousands of letters soliciting subscriptions as presents, or either through the columns of The POST of Hanukah as the time for sending gift subscriptions.

Finally, we gave it up as a bad job.

The magazines all seem to go in heavy for the idea of gift subscriptions at Xmas, and from what we know, this accounts for a substantial number of their new subscriptions.

But for us, for some reason, it hadn't seemed to work.

Consequently, this year we never even so much as wasted one line to promote the idea.

So what happens?

Readers begin to flood us with letters bringing orders for gift subscriptions for their friends, or for their children at school, etc.

For all of which we are grateful, albeit somewhat confused at the same time.

VAYEH: And He Favored The Younger Over The Elder

The young men who are leading the rebellion against the Soviet-controlled government in Hungary are all children of the revolution. They were born after Soviet communism had come to power, and they have known no other government. They heard in their childhood that the philosophy of Marx and Lenin was the birth cry of a new freedom, a freedom from economic slavery as well as from political tyranny. And now that government has become old, reactionary, repressive. The flaming evangelists of October, 1917, have become the Steel Pharaohs of 1956. The men who won their spurs by inciting revolution are now the men, or the colleagues of the men, who are repressing revolution with ruthless bloodshed.

THIS INELUCTABLE tendency of rebellious youth to become conservative manhood is nowhere better revealed than in the closing sedra of Genesis. When Joseph hears that his father Jacob is on his deathbed, he brings his sons Manasseh and Ephraim, to receive the blessing from the hands of Jacob. Jacob deliberately places the right hand of the authentic blessing over the head of the younger son Ephraim, instead of the older Manasseh; and persists in doing so even after Joseph has protested this procedure. It will be recalled that Jacob and Joseph and Isaac before them had been so favored.

This favoritism of the younger not only violated the accepted law and custom of primogeniture, but brought about the violent enmity of Ishmael as against Isaac, and Esau as against Jacob, and the older sons of Jacob as against Joseph. Jacob knew all this, but still persisted in blessing Ephraim before Manasseh. What accounts for this strange reversion of values? Is it not doubly strange that this should become a continuous pattern with a people recognized for its respect of the elder, a people whose wise men had to wear beards to entitle their opinions to the proper reverence?

THOMAS MANN gives a very involved, deterministic, psycho-analytic explanation—more Jungian than Freudian—in his theory of the "Time Coulisse." He believes that this repetition compulsion is fixed in the blood and is conveyed through the racial memory which, among other things, annihilates time, so that Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Joseph are all being pushed by the same on-going compulsion to do what they have to do. This favoring of the younger is, since time is illusory, only a return to their own lost youth.

I prefer to see in this pattern of favoring the younger a sober realization on the part of the sages of Israel that age corrupts the imagination and cools the ardors of youth; that in order to preserve the vitality to project the group into the future the elders must prepare the seed of the rebellion which will overthrow them. In this sense, Israel is the permanent underground, the eternal yeast, the perennial Elijah spirit, ever willing to plough the cake of custom, to put rollers under thrones, and give only a day-to-day lease to authority.

Anchored to Torah, rooted to God, Israel feels free to dispense with man-made hierarchies which would forever place the elder over the younger.

COMPARES RUSH TO ADMIT REFUGEES NOW TO 1930s

•Editor, National Jewish POST:

It seems that the law of humanity does not equally apply to all people everywhere particularly when it affects the Jewish people.

As Americans we were proud when President Eisenhower announced that we will open our gates to admit 20,000 Hungarian refugees fleeing from their Communist persecutors. We welcome even more the liberal and generous recommendation made by Representative Walter who proposes to admit a great number, particularly so when it comes from the lips of the famous Rep. Walter, the co-author of the infamous MacCarran-Walter Immigration Law.

These magnanimous humane acts on the part of our government to save people are highly commendable. They made the lamp of liberty at the golden gate at Liberty Island glow a little brighter—a light that has been extinguished during the last 20 years.

As we turn the pages of history back a little, we find ourselves baffled and confused when we see what happened on a similar occasion under more dangerous circumstances when the Jews were fleeing from Nazi New York City

Germany under the Hitler regime; more dangerous because unlike the Hungarians who revolted against the yoke of Communism, the Jews did not revolt. They were not permitted to live even if they submitted to the barbaric law of Nazism. Jews were ordained to be liquidated regardless.

When we pause to analyze the advent of the wanton slaughter of the innocent six million men, women and children, we wonder when the historians chronicle that period, one of the blackest pages in all history, whether they will be able to justify the civilized nations by taking one stand to save Hungarian human lives, and a decade prior another affecting Jews fleeing for their lives from a more deadly murderous Hitler. Can the civilized nations, including our great democracy, really come to the court of world public opinion with clean hands or will the nations of the free world, including our own, find themselves occupying part of that black page as accessory during the fact. Will the millions of men, women and children, now dead, cry out to the whole civilized world, SHAME? . . .

TELLS OF MUSEUM CLASS FOR JEWISH CRAFTSMEN

•Editor, National Jewish POST:

The anguished cry of Manfred Goldschmidt (NJP, Nov. 30, '56) is justified, but fortunately steps have already been taken to answer his demands.

As of August of this year, the Jewish Museum in New York has begun a school for Jewish craftsmen working with modern Jewish ceremonial objects. The master craftsman, Ludwig Wolpert, is well known to those who are interested in this field, and he is now interested in doing just what Mr. Goldschmidt proposes.

We hope in the not-too-distant future to include a group for fabric design in addition to the metal work which is our exclusive interest for the moment. Perhaps Mr. Goldschmidt might be interested in joining us then.

It might not be inappropriate to mention at this time that the Jewish Museum for some years has tried to stimulate the design of Jewish ceremonial objects for Jewish institutions. The museum has acted frequently to bring together synagogue architects with the Jewish artist. We hope this custom becomes more prevalent and that most synagogues' decorations will be Jewish inspired and Jewish executed.

Confirms Opinion

•Editor, National Jewish POST:

I hope you will grant space for me to make a rejoinder to Mr. Brownfield's recriminations (NJP, Dec. 7, '56).

Judaism was not once mentioned in my letter (NJP, Nov. 30, '56). I spoke of his decrying everything connected with the name of his people, not of his religion, and to confirm my assertion in his answer to me he prides himself of having "attacked Zionist politicking in behalf of Israel." Has he also attacked Arameo politicking in behalf of Saudi Arabia?

He objects to my calling the Jews another folk group in America. Well, I wonder what group can be more "folky" than one whose religion made them practice inbreeding for long centuries?

Yes, I think very little of Mr. Brownfield's vociferous, breast-beating Americanism as presented in his previous letters and in the hodge-podge of platitudes in the penultimate paragraph of this one; my Americanism is simply that of the principles enunciated in the preamble of the Constitution and laid down in the Bill of Rights.

Reader Laughs At TRinity-1236

•Editor, National Jewish POST:

I was greatly amused by the comments of Rabbi Louis Levitsky about the complaint of the Atlanta Southern Israelite because the telephone company had named one of its exchanges Trinity (NJP, July 20, '56).

Maybe the trinity they had in mind was Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and that would have been okeh with our Southern friends.

How amusing it would be if the telephone company had assigned this complaining newspaper the number TRinity 1236. The dial lettering of this number would spell T-R-A-F-E-R and then the Southern Israelite would have "squealed like a pig."

Rosenwald's Picture

Upside Down Last Week

•Editor, National Jewish POST:

When your make-up man put William Rosenwald's picture upside down in the current issue, undoubtedly he was thinking it was Lessing Rosenwald. It was very natural. Lessing Rosenwald has been standing on his head for a long time.

LEOPOLD N. SPERLING
Cleveland, O.

Editor's Note: In the papers of last week which were run off the press first, William Rosenwald's picture was inverted. As soon as a new page mat could be rolled and plated, Mr. Rosenwald's photograph appeared right side up.

WRIGHT DENIES REMARKS, REPORTER CHALLENGES HIM

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NJP)—The State Department finally took official cognizance of the protests against anti-Semitic views of Edwin M. Wright, assistant dean of the Foreign Service Institute (FSI) this week.

It issued through Harold B. Hoskins, director of the FSI, an official denial of the report (NJP, Nov. 9, 1956) in The National Jewish POST from its Washington correspondent, Lillian G. Levy, in which a number of bizarre statements about Jews made by Wright were published.

Hoskins forwarded the statement by Mr. Wright to Michael G. Tress, president of Agudath Israel of America, which had specifically protested the remarks attributed to Wright in which he was alleged to have attacked Orthodox Jewry as a non-productive element of modern society.

Wright's statement follows in full:

The following is a correction to a report in The National Jewish POST of Nov. 9, 1956, which purported to represent my views. I did not make the statements attributed to me in the article nor do they represent my views. Rather than merely deny the correctness of the report, I would like to make a positive reply. I spoke purely by personal arrangement. The topic was "Cultural Patterns In Islam." In an hour's presentation I never discussed Judaism.

As an illustration of the distortions in the article, a question was asked after the talk which concerned the influence of various authoritarian groups in Islam. I replied that in order to understand these dogmas, we needed only to go back in our own religious histories a few centuries to find that doctrinal correctness or Orthodoxy was mandatory. Therefore, as science and new ideas entered the old "Orthodox" world, its advocates often suffered opposition and persecution. Here I mentioned Maimonides, Spinoza, Galileo, and the "orthodoxy" of Geneva under the Protestants. The newspaper report puts this in the present tense, omits any reference to other than Jewish "orthodoxies" and thus gives a false conclusion. The internal evidence in the report proves I was speaking of a bygone age and another continent. Other statements in the article have been similarly misrepresented.

EDWIN M. WRIGHT.

STATE DEPT. ASSURES RABBI ON ANTI-JEWISH REMARKS

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NJP)—Rabbi David Panitz, who has challenged the bigoted statements made by Edwin G. Wright before his class in the Foreign Service Institute, was assured this week that the statements attributed to Wright are being investigated.

In a meeting with William Roundtree, assistant Secretary of State, the Conservative rabbi was told that a report of the matter was being awaited by the State Department.

Roundtree told Rabbi Panitz that unfactual statements or views which were contrary to those held by the United States and the State Department would not be tolerated in any of his departments.

Rabbi Panitz, who has a comprehensive report of Wright's remarks made in a classroom lecture, charged (NJP, Nov. 30, '56) that the lecture was "replete with intemperate and snide remarks against Jews, thereby casting aspersions against American Jews."

Real Assurances Asked By Israel

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Israel will never be a passive victim to Nasser, Golda Meir told an overflow audience at the National Press Club here.

"The right of statehood and sovereignty belongs to Israel no less than to each and every one of the 10 Arab States," Israel's foreign minister asserted. She declared that Israel must have real assurances against aggression, before she would withdraw from Egyptian territory. She added that there must be freedom of navigation for all nations through the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba, and "there must be no possibility whatever of Egypt's threatening . . . hostilities against Israel from the previous position occupied by its army."

She said that the United Nations is in a position to secure these legitimate aims by calling Israel and her neighbors to direct negotiations for peace.

WRIGHT STORY ACCURATE SAYS MRS. LILLIAN LEVY

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Mrs. Lillian G. Levy, Washington correspondent of The National Jewish POST, stood her ground this week in face of the denial by Edwin G. Wright, assistant dean of the Foreign Service Institute, and challenged once again the specific statements she reported that he made against Jews. The report, which appeared in the Nov. 9 issue of The POST, told of a speech made by Wright before a group of about 60 persons in the National Presbyterian church, the one which President Eisenhower attends.

Mrs. Levy referred to lengthy notes made at the time Mr. Wright was speaking. The notes were taken by one of Mrs. Levy's aids.

She also asked why Mr. Wright admitted to Robert G. Spivack, reporter for the New York Post, that the report in The National Jewish POST, although misinterpreted, was accurate.

SPIVACK CONFIRMED here again that Wright had told him in two telephone interviews, which he reported in his own paper, that Mrs. Levy's report of his remarks was correct.

Mrs. Levy's statement follows:

In issuing this denial Wright overlooked the fact that on Nov. 16 the New York Post carried the story of two telephone interviews its veteran correspondent, Robert G. Spivack, had with Wright in the course of which Spivack reported, "Wright did not deny the quotes attributed to him, but said they were misinterpreted by Mrs. Levy . . ."

SPIVACK'S report states that Wright claims all his comments are carefully documented and he quotes Wright as saying about this reporter, "She quotes me as saying that Maimonides was excommunicated. Well, that's not my report. That's the Encyclopedia Britannica."

This reporter checked the current edition of the encyclopedia Britannica as well as several earlier editions, and no such statement appears in any edition checked, which indicates Wright's so-called "careful documentation" is in error in this instance unless Wright has a special Britannica edition with the misinformation.

In Spivack's story on his two interviews with Wright, who now denies the statements discussing Judaism attributed to him by me on Nov. 9, Spivack reports Wright said, "the references to Judaism were incidental to the authoritarian development of modern institutions."

THIS REPORTER quoted Wright as saying "Zionist ideology comes straight out of Deuteronomy." While Wright denies this, he told Spivack, "Many of the ideas one finds in Zionism are to be found in Deuteronomy. It's the concept that the Jews are a chosen people to belong in that land (Israel)."

These inconsistencies and self-contradictions of Wright were pointed out to the Foreign Service Institute. However, the FSI and the State Department, through its official spokesman, maintain that Wright is a responsible man. In a telephone interview with this reporter, the spokesman said "the Department thinks he is a responsible official who teaches background to new foreign service officers."

ASKED IF any changes were contemplated in the Near East course given by Wright to junior FSI officers as a consequence of the strong protest lodged by Rabbi David Panitz with Hoskins, based on a student's summary of a Wright lecture, the spokesman said that as far as he knows "they don't feel the charges were important enough to change the courses"; but he would check further.

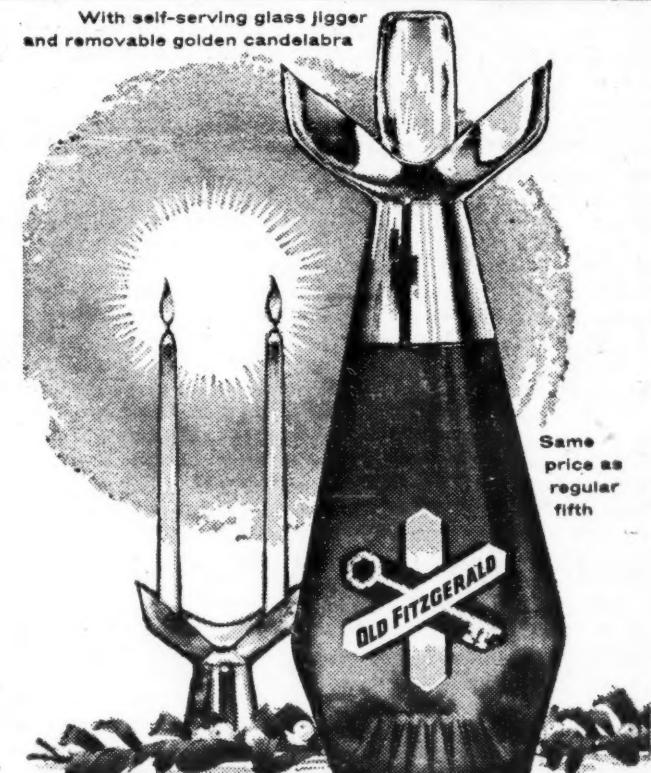

The spokesman went on to say that "when you have a man like Dean Wright who has a subject matter so much a part of him that he doesn't speak from notes but speaks extemporaneously from what he knows, he can speak and no one censors it."

THE SPOKESMAN said that everyone wonders how the Middle East got that way.

He went on to say that Dean Wright's approach is an historical one, and that he doesn't give Middle East policy. His lectures are devoted to general theory and background, said the spokesman. The FSI is like a graduate school and is semiautonomous. It is not policy making, explained the official.

REFERRED to junior FSI officers who take the course, the spokesman said, "these students are not stupid. They must pass very stiff competitive exams to qualify for FSI. They listen to this Wright's lectures as general background. . . . They do not necessarily take everything he says verbatim, although some of them may."

According to the spokesman, Wright's Nov. 21 denial "satisfied Mr. Henderson and the White House," as well as the congressmen who had made inquiries and had received copies of Wright's denial.
